Quotations and links

A quotation is indented on both sides:

> Typography exists to honour content. Every rule here serves the reader, who should never have to notice it.

Straight "quotes" become curly ones, two hyphens make an en dash for ranges such as 10–20, three make an em dash—like this—and three dots make an ellipsis... A link to the specification is clickable without a visible box.